- Fortifies Property Management with Appointment of Hotel/Casino Management Industry Veteran -

Penn National Gaming, Inc. (Nasdaq:PENN) announced today that effective immediately, John E. Jagunich, has been named President and Chief Executive Officer of Penn National's Casino Magic property in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, subject to the satisfaction of regulatory approvals.

The newly created position follows Penn National's purchase of Casino Magic, Bay St. Louis in August 2000.

John brings nearly 30 years of gaming and hotel industry experience as well as eight years of experience managing the facilities, hotels, and food and beverage operations of prominent casinos in the Bahamas, Las Vegas, and Atlantic City. In his new role John will be responsible for all facets of the operation of Casino Magic and will report directly to Penn National President and Chief Operating Officer, Kevin DeSanctis.

Prior to joining Penn National, John served as Senior Vice President, Food and Beverage at the Atlantis, Paradise Island property in the Bahamas owned by Sun International Resorts, Inc., an indirect subsidiary of Sun International Hotels Limited (NYSE:SIH). John's responsibilities at Atlantis, the world's largest island resort with 2,400 rooms, included the management and oversight of all food and beverage operations which represent over $130 million in annual revenues for Atlantis. John began his career in 1971 at Radisson Hotels in Bloomington, Minnesota. After two years at Radisson, he steadily ascended through the management ranks at Trust House Forte, Holiday Corporations, and Promus Companies through 1993 before assuming a gaming industry management position with Harrah's Entertainment. At Harrah's, John held key management positions in Atlantic City, New Jersey and Las Vegas, Nevada until 1998 when he joined Sun International.

Commenting on the appointment, Peter M. Carlino, Chief Executive Officer of Penn National said, "Following our executive management and senior operations appointments in June, John's appointment extends our initiative to bring the expertise of those managing our newly acquired properties in line with the Company's growing asset base. The appointments this year of John, Bill Clifford as Vice President, Finance and Chief Financial Officer; Jack Rauen as Vice President, Operations; Kevin DeSanctis as President and Chief Operating Officer, and Richard Orbann as President of the Company's racing division, as well as the management resources from the CRC acquisition, underscore our goal of positioning Penn National with one of the strongest management teams -- in terms of the depth of our operational and financial experience -- in the gaming industry."

Kevin DeSanctis added, "Having worked with John in the past, I am confident that his expertise, knowledge and track record of success in the areas of hotel/casino management, food and beverage, and hospitality make him a valuable asset for Casino Magic Bay St. Louis and Penn National Gaming."

Commenting on his appointment, John Jagunich stated, "Witnessing the expansion of the hospitality and gaming industries for 30 years, the growth and emergence of Penn National as a diversified regional leader over the last five years is truly impressive. The ability to manage a promising property like Casino Magic, Bay St. Louis and to be at Penn National at such a dynamic time in the Company's growth, is a wonderful opportunity. I look forward to leading this property to its fullest potential following the completion of our well-planned expansion and modernization."
